

Preface

The 2025 International Conference on Green Economy and Social Collaborative Development (GESCD2025) will be held in Singapore from August 15 to 17, 2025. This esteemed conference is committed to presenting pioneering research and academic achievements at the lively intersection of green economy and social collaborative development. We cordially invite authors to submit papers to this special conference, which present research findings, case studies, comprehensive reviews, and practical insights that highlight significant progress in these interdisciplinary fields.

The landscape of green economy and social collaborative development has been characterized by rapid evolution and transformative changes. Looking ahead, the potential for groundbreaking discoveries and innovations is enormous. GESCD2025 is designed to foster engaging dialogues on the most recent scientific breakthroughs, emerging trends, and creative concepts within this vibrant field.

We sincerely hope you enjoy the contents of the conference and find a good opportunity to discuss ideas and future collaborations with other researchers and practitioners from institutions around the world.

With our kindest regards,

Conference Committee of GESCD2025
